MAKES SOME CHANGES

President Wilson Revises Final Draft of Demand Upon German Empire.

Washington, May 13.—President Wilson had before him for revision the state department's final draft of the note to be sent to Germany regarding the sinking of the Lusitania and other outrages against the rights of the United States upon the sea.

It had been expected the note would go forward to Berlin last night, but the president, after conferences with Counselor Lansing of the state department, made several changes in legal detail and then revised it alone in his study. It will be dispatched to Berlin at once.

Administration officials are positive the note will meet all the demands of intelligent public opinion for firmness. It is predicted that the publication of the note, which will be authorized as soon as it is sent to Berlin, will send a thrill of satisfaction and pride through the United States such as has not been felt in a long time.

The note is as forceful as it is possible to make it without actually furnishing justification for a declaration of war by Germany. In it President Wilson notifies Germany that this government is standing firmly behind its previous warning to hold Germany to a strict accountability for its acts against American life and property in the prosecution of its submarine operations.

Insists on Two Concessions.

The communication itself does not disclose what form this "strict accountability" will take. But it is clear that recourse to radical action will be necessary if the German government fails to give the United States satisfactory redress. The president's note calls upon Germany for two specific concessions. They are:

First—Reparation for the American lives that have been lost and the American vessels that have been sunk.

Second—Modification of Germany's submarine program in such a way as to give the United States assurances against a recurrence of the recent appalling destruction of the lives of noncombatants and the attacks upon neutral ships.

As regards reparation no attempt is made in the note to suggest what would be satisfaction. The determination of this reparation apparently is left to Germany's own conscience. The United States does not attempt to put a money value upon the damage to American life and property.

The understanding here is that there is distinct intimation in the note of doubt whether any reparation is really measurable. It is clear, however, that this government expects some reparation beyond a money payment—possibly a disavowal on the part of Germany of any intention to destroy the lives or property of neutrals.

Three Thoughts in Mind.

President Wilson has drafted the note with three thoughts in mind—to satisfy the self-respect of the United States, to arouse Germany to a realization of her offense against the rights of neutrals and finally to stop short of any statement which might be regarded by Germany as a justification for declaring war.

By those who are familiar with the contents of the note its tone is described as admirable and the president's advisers are extremely hopeful that its language will not be offensive to the German government. It contains no bluffer or threats. It is described as an exceedingly dignified, businesslike communication, but expressed with a firmness that will meet the expectations of the American public.

The note is founded not only on the principles of international law, to which the United States will ask Germany to conform, but upon the broader grounds of humanity. It is apparent that the president in this note hopes, among other things, to be able to arouse the consciousness of the German people and open a way to the German government to meet the representations of the United States on humanitarian grounds with a minimum of embarrassment to herself.

All Depends on Germany.

As was disclosed the issue between the United States and Germany will be just as serious as the imperial government desires to make it. There will be no war, unless Germany herself takes the initiative. In the event of the kaiser refusing to concede the American demands it will be incumbent upon the United States to make good its determination to hold Germany to a strict accountability.

LORD WIMBORNE.

Orders All Bodies Be Taken to Queenstown.

This would be likely to take the form of a severing of diplomatic relations with Germany by the United States. It would then be up to Germany to make the issue just as serious as she cared to make it. If it went to the extent of a break in diplomatic relations many here fear that a more serious situation would be certain to develop rapidly.

Policy Carefully Considered.

It was learned that the president in determining his policy had given consideration to the most serious possibilities in the case. There has been a disposition in many quarters to belittle the pressure which the United States might be able to bring to bear upon Germany in the event of a clash. It is known that some Washington officials have reached an entirely different conclusion.

They believe that the resources of the United States in the manufacture of munitions of war could be expanded immeasurably beyond the present capacity and that there would be no danger of the necessity to cut shipments to France, England and Russia, to conserve the necessary demands of the United States. Furthermore, it is pointed out that the vast financial resources of this country under a war stimulus would be a factor of incalculable value.

These matters have been cited merely as indicating grounds for hopefulness that Germany may hesitate to bring about a break with the United States and will give satisfaction in the diplomatic negotiations.

MOBS PLAYING HAVOC IN CONSTANTINOPLE

Many Persons Have Been Killed and Others Injured.

Geneva, May 13.—The Journal de Geneve has received a dispatch from Saloniki saying that many persons have been killed or injured in the course of riots in Constantinople. Mobs numbering thousands, the newspaper says, pillaged the principal shops and hotels. The sultan's guard has been called out.

According to this information the Pera Palace hotel, the largest and most pretentious European hotel in the city, was sacked. The police were overwhelmed.

Food prices in Constantinople have doubled and there is widespread misery among the poorer classes. The hospitals are crowded with wounded soldiers.

The Pera Palace hotel, the dispatch says, was full of German officers, who were maltreated by the populace. Many of them were injured.

CANADA HAD 103,760 ARMED MEN ON MAY 1.

Ottawa, Ont., May 13.—Canada had 103,760 men under arms at the front and in Canada on May 1, according to an official announcement. The government expects that the number will be increased to 150,000 by midsummer.

GREAT PITCHING STAR STILL SHINES

Walter Johnson

Walter Johnson, the great pitcher of the Washington club, who was claimed from the St. Louis club of the Federal League, is still the star he has been for seasons past if his showing at the beginning of the baseball year is an indication. He won in his first two games of the season in such a manner that Clark Griffith, manager of the Senators, was pleased. Johnson depends almost wholly on his bewildering speed, and the time must soon come when he will lose that. He cannot be expected to last as long as pitchers who study batters and win with their tricks. But Washington fans are happy this year that he shows indications of going through the season as great as ever.

THIRTEEN THOUSAND WOUNDED

(By United Press)

Constantinople, May 13.—The arrival of 13,000 Turkish wounded this morning converted Constantinople into a city of terror. Large crowds, mostly women, paraded the streets this afternoon cursing war and those responsible for the participation of Turkey in the conflict now raging. Sultan Mohamed is reported to have reached the American quarters and has threatened to abdicate. Today's wounded brings the number up to 40,000 Turks, while the number of dead is unknown. The extent of the casualties from wounds is ascertainable because the over crowded field hospitals necessitated using the Constantinople quarters.

BRITISH WARSHIP GOLIATH TORPEDOED IN DARDANELLES

(By United Press)

London, May 13.—The war department of England issues an official bulletin stating that the British warship Goliath has been torpedoed in the Dardanelles, the admiralty placing the loss of men at 500. The craft was a 12,000 ton battleship and of the same class as the Ocean, which was sunk when the Irristable and Bouvet were sunk in the Dardanelles. She was built in 1898 and carried 550 men.

DEFINITE, PROMPT ANSWER DEMANDED

(By United Press)

Washington, May 13.—Germany must act, not quibble or promise, is the attitude of the government note to Germany that will be delivered late this afternoon, which contains 1,200 to 1,500 words. The latest information will not be made public until it is known that the document has been delivered to the Berlin government. Ambassador Gerard will get the note tonight, and it stated that it calls for definite and prompt answer and action by Germany and not for further discussion or promise.

Crisis is Reached

Washington, May 13.—It is evident from the attitude of every prominent official that the crisis in foreign American affairs has been reached. The die is cast and the language is impossible to misinterpret. The United States calls the killing of a hundred Americans on the Lusitania a monstrous crime, following the Guildford and other incidents. The act is characterized as open hostility for which there is no excuse, and the note calls for a definite change in Germany's method of warfare. The officers scout the idea of an extra session of congress, and the president says that the idea has been definitely rejected. Even if Germany refuses to accede to the demands he could quickly call congress for a war loan of a billion dollars. Our credit is good. Strategically the United States will act slowly.

GERMAN EMBASSY BELIEVES CAN MEET ON U. S. TERMS

Washington, May 13.—The German embassy believes that Germany and the United States can meet on the terms of the U. S. note. It is unofficially reported that Von Bernstorff refuses to talk other than to issue an absolute denial of the morning stories, purporting to reflect the views of the embassies.

AMERICAN CONSUL ASKS FULL DESCRIPTION OF PERSONS

(By United Press)

Queenstown, May 13.—American Consul Frost has asked the relatives of those who lost their lives on the Lusitania to immediately furnish a thorough description of the persons missing. Reports received indicate that many more bodies have been found, and it is possible that the length of time they have been in the water has destroyed cards or letters that otherwise aid in identification.

U. S. NOTE TO GERMANY MUST BE CODED FIRST

Washington, May 13.—The United States note to Germany must be coded first before it is transmitted, which will probably not be before late this afternoon.

LIVERPOOL RIOTERS WRECK MANY SHOPS

Bitter Feeling All Over England Against Germans.

London, May 13.—Three New Yorkers narrowly escaped the wrath of members of a mob at Southend, who mistook the Americans for Germans and started for the Yankees shouting "They are German-American spies! Kill them! Avenge the Lusitania!"

They escaped on a street car. The party was made up of Captain Louis Zorche, Louis Libmann, his assistant, and Frank Winch, a newspaper man. They had obtained police permission to take photographs.

The rioters gathered to show their anger over the recent Zeppelin attack here and the sinking of the Lusitania. Some German premises were wrecked. The police were powerless to cope with the mob. Soldiers were placed in charge of the town.

Two hundred German establishments in Liverpool have been attacked by rioters. The damage resulting from the attacks is estimated at $200,000.

Outbreaks against Germans in England steadily have grown worse in the past twenty-four hours.

Many German shops have been wrecked. The proprietors of the shops generally were driven away by angry crowds. None of the persons attacked is reported to have been seriously injured.

HUNDRED BODIES FLOATING

Fishing Boat Sees Many Victims of the Lusitania.

Queenstown, May 13.—Lord Wimborne, lord lieutenant of Ireland, issued an order in Dublin that hereafter any bodies of persons drowned on board the Lusitania found along the Irish coast shall be brought direct to Queenstown without the formality of an inquest in small towns where they might happen to be landed.

A fishing boat reported having sighted no less than 100 bodies floating ten miles south of Glendore, which is situated on the southwest coast of County Cork, a fact which upsets the contention that the current, wind and tides had so scattered the bodies of victims as to make the recovery of any considerable number of them questionable.

The news of the sighting of these bodies was conveyed to Webb Ware, secretary of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who has been most vigilant in search for Mr. Vanderbilt's body, and in urging that no effort be spared to find the dead before it was too late.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

Father of Victims Severely Burned in Attempting Rescue.

Green Bay, Wis., May 13.—Two children, a boy and girl, aged eighteen and thirteen years, of Jules Roebek, living at New Denmark, in Brown county, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home above a blacksmith shop. The father was burned about the arms and head while trying to save them. He and his wife and three children were saved.

The stairway from the bedrooms led inside the shop and the fire had gained such headway before any one awoke that escape was made only through dense smoke and close to the flames.

RUSSIANS AGAIN TAKE OFFENSIVE

Another Big Battle Raging in Eastern Galicia.

FIGHTING AT DARDANELLES

Anglo-French Troops Are Said to Have Progressed at Least Five Miles—Germans Continue Their Attacks Upon the British Lines in Flanders.

London, May 13.—Another big battle has been added to those taking place in Flanders and Western Galicia, the Russians having taken the offensive in Eastern Galicia, Bukovina and along the Dniester river.

According to the Russian report the Muscovites have driven the Austrians back along a front of more than forty miles, capturing many prisoners and making a great haul of booty. The Russians also are said to have taken energetic action against the Germans who raided their Baltic provinces and to have recaptured the town of Shavil, while in Central Poland they are on the offensive along the Bzura river.

Heavy fighting also is reported from the Gallipoli peninsula and the Dardanelles, where the Anglo-French troops on Friday last had advanced to the vicinity of Krithia, some five miles from the point where they landed, and from the entrance to the straits. Since then the fleet has recommenced a heavy bombardment of the forts in the narrows, an indication, it is believed here, that the troops have got in such good positions that they no longer require the support of the ships' fire.

The greatest interest, however, centers in the great battles which are being fought on the Belgian coast to Arras, in Northern France, and the battle in Western Galicia, where the Russians are still falling back before the onslaught of the German allies.

Attacking British Lines.

In Flanders the Germans continue their attacks against the British lines east of Ypres, where they on Saturday and Sunday and almost daily since then have launched tremendous attacks.

Farther south toward Arras and south and east of that town the French offensive continues to meet with considerable success, although the French have lost some trenches which they had won in front of the town of Loos. The German attacks on the British were made in anticipation of an Anglo-French offensive, which some parties believe to be the "big push" which had been expected at this time, although others are of the opinion that General Joffre is only "nibbling" at the German lines in an effort to induce them to a counter attack, in which he expects them to lose heavily even when they are successful.

The Russians admit that they are still retreating in Western Galicia, while the Austrians and Germans make greater claims, and say that, besides crossing the San river, they have captured many towns on the northern slopes of the Carpathians, and right across to the Polish border, and are forcing the Russians to give up many of their hard won positions in those mountains.

American action with regard to the sinking of the Lusitania and the Italian situation are the outstanding diplomatic features of the war.

BONUS FOR COPPER MINERS

Employees Will Receive Pay Forfeited by Reduction.

Houghton, Mich., May 13.—Officials of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company announced here that on June 12 a bonus of more than $500,000 will be distributed among the ten thousand employees of the company and its subsidiaries.

On account of business depression, the corporation, Sept. 1, 1914, passed its dividend, put employees on three-quarters time and reduced wages 10 per cent. Office employees from manager to office boys received a cut of 15 per cent.

When the copper situation began to improve and show a profit the men were put back on full time and wages were advanced to the former scale.

LOTS OFFERED AT AUCTION

Celebrated Artist and Architect Arrive in the City Today to Superintend Work

John M. Doherty, the landscape architect and artist, of St. Paul, arrived this morning to superintend the development work at Bane's Brookside Addition which is to be offered in lots at public auction on Monday, May 17 at two o'clock in the afternoon. R. N. Van Buskirk, the auctioneer, came with Mr. Doherty.
Both gentlemen are stopping at the Ransford hotel. According to the report of the Brainerd Daily Republican the great sale at Jewett's
Point, conducted by these gentlemen, Monday afternoon, was attended by over 1,800 people and every lot in the tract was sold at good prices.
This indication of the confidence of the people in city property as a safe and profitable medium of investment, is evidenced throughout the state at this time. Brainerd will be no exception to the rule as the people here are wide awake to the possibilities of its assured rapid growth and prosperity.

CURED BY A LAUGH

It Was a Hearty One and Better
Than a Dose of Medicine.

A STORY ABOUT A LECTURE.

It Ought to Have Been Funny and Seemed at the Time to Be Funny and Yet Afterward There Was Grave
Doubt as to Whether It Was or Not

"What's your book?" Squire Dumont asked of a neighbor as they sat waiting their turn in the village barber shop.

"Innocents Abroad," by Mark Twain," was the reply. "I just got it out of the library. I suppose you would call it pretty light reading."

"You needn't be a bit ashamed of it.
Mr. Pinkham," said the squire, heartily. "It's a book that has done a lot of good. It has made thousands of people laugh, and a good laugh is often better than a dose of medicine."

"I've seen that proved," said Mr.
Pinkham. "I went to hear Mark Twain lecture once," he added, with a reminiscent chuckle.

"You don't say so?" exclaimed the squire. "I never had that pleasure myself. It must have been a great treat."

"Yes, it was. I'm a great admirer of Mark Twain and have been for years. I had always wanted to see and hear him, and when I saw in a Portland paper that he was to lecture there on a certain evening it came over me that that was my time to go and hear him.

"I had just lost a lawsuit, and my wife was away from home with a sick sister. I was pretty blue and lonesome and felt the need of being cheered up.

"I took the afternoon train, calculating to get to my cousin Jim's in time for supper and then go to the lecture.
But, as luck would have it, a freight train had been wrecked near Brunswick, and we never got into Portland until 8 o'clock. However, I hurried to the hall and paid my way in and got a good seat right up in front. I had missed some of the lecture, but I was thankful to get what was left. It wasn't so much what he said, though, as the way he said it that tickled me.
I laughed more that night than I had for a year.

"Well, after the lecture was over I made my way to my cousin Jim's. He has means, and they live in some style, but I got a cordial welcome. Clara, his wife, told me that I couldn't see Jim that night. He was poorly, and she was a good deal worried about him.
But while we were talking he found out I was there and sent for me to come to his room. I never saw any one more in the dumps than he was. I guess he complained steady for as much as half an hour. He was a very sick man. He didn't relish his victuals, and what he did eat distressed him. Night after night he got hardly a wink of sleep, and nothing interested him any more. Moreover, what the doctor gave him didn't do a mite of good. It was pitiful to hear him go on. Finally he asked me how I happened to be in Portland.

"So you came up to hear Mark Twain?" says he, and his face brightened up. "Did you like him?" says he,
and I said, "Of course I did."

"Now tell me honestly," says he,
'was that lecture as funny as you expected?"

"Well," says I, "it was funny, of course, and I guess when I have had a chance to think it over it will seem funnier. But there were parts of it that didn't seem so dreadful funny."
"Then all at once Jim fell back in his chair and began to choke, and for a minute I was scared. As soon as he could speak he says: 'That wasn't Mark Twain that you heard. He lectured here last week. What you heard,' says he, 'was a lecture on the poetry of Robert Browning by Professor'—I forget now what Jim called his name.
Then he took to laughing again, and I thought he'd never stop.

"After that Jim wanted to know how the people near me took my laughing so much at the lecture, and when I remembered that some of 'em did scow-l a little he went off again.

"Well, naturally I felt a little cheap, but afterward I wasn't sorry. The next morning Jim said he had had his first good night's rest for a month, and he really made out quite a breakfast.
About a fortnight after that I got a letter from him saying that he was feeling quite like himself again.

"I don't know as my visit had a thing to do with it, but I've always felt as if it did. In that case it goes to prove what you said, squire, that a good laugh is sometimes better than a dose of medicine."—Youth's Companion.

Hard to Keep Up.

"Fond of reading, are you?"
"Yes."

"Read all Shakespeare's works, I suppose?"

"I don't know whether I've read his latest or not. So much stuff coming out these days!"—Louisville Courier Journal.

Keeping Wifey Dressed.

"Money isn't everything."
"No; there are ways of getting along.
Take my case, for instance. I married into a family where there is a dressmaker. You have no idea what a help that is."—Kansas City Journal.

But, as luck would have it, a freight train had been wrecked near Brunswick, and we never got into Portland until 8 o'clock. However, I hurried to the hall and paid my way in and got a good seat right up in front. I had missed some of the lecture, but I was thankful to get what was left. It wasn't so much what he said, though, as the way he said it that tickled me. I laughed more that night than I had for a year."

"Well, after the lecture was over I made my way to my cousin Jim's. He has means, and they live in some style, but I got a cordial welcome. Clara, his wife, told me that I couldn't see Jim that night. He was poorly, and she was a good deal worried about him. But while we were talking he found out I was there and sent for me to come to his room. I never saw any one more in the dumps than he was. I guess he complained steadily for as much as half an hour. He was a very sick man. He didn't relish his victuals, and what he did eat distressed him. Night after night he got hardly a wink of sleep, and nothing interested him any more. Moreover, what the doctor gave him didn't do a mite of good. It was pitiful to hear him go on. Finally he asked me how I happened to be in Portland."

"So you came up to hear Mark Twain?" says he, and his face brightened up. "Did you like him?" says he, and I said, "Of course I did."

"Now tell me honestly," says he, "was that lecture as funny as you expected?"

"Well," says I, "it was funny, of course, and I guess when I have had a chance to think it over it will seem funnier. But there were parts of it that didn't seem so dreadful funny."

"Then all at once Jim fell back in his chair and began to choke, and for a minute I was scared. As soon as he could speak he says: 'That wasn't Mark Twain that you heard. He lectured here last week. What you heard,' says he, 'was a lecture on the poetry of Robert Browning by Professor'—I forget now what Jim called his name. Then he took to laughing again, and I thought he'd never stop."

"After that Jim wanted to know how the people near me took my laughing so much at the lecture, and when I remembered that some of 'em did scowl a little he went off again."

"Well, naturally I felt a little cheap, but afterward I wasn't sorry. The next morning Jim said he had had his first good night's rest for a month, and he really made out quite a breakfast. About a fortnight after that I got a letter from him saying that he was feeling quite like himself again."

"I don't know as my visit had a thing to do with it, but I've always felt as if it did. In that case it goes to prove what you said, squire, that a good laugh is sometimes better than a dose of medicine."—Youth's Companion.

Lee Surrender Relics

Used Fifty Years Ago, When War Ended at Appomattox Court House

THE two pens that ended the great civil war are now in Missouri. Only once have they been dipped in ink since the memorable day when U. S. Grant and Robert E. Lee made use of them in the Virginia hamlet dignified by the name of Appomattox Court House. The present owner, Dr. E. P. Cronkite, a St. Joseph (Mo.) dentist, would deem it little short of sacrilege for the pens to be touched by any drop of ink destined to flow into ordinary sentences. The pens repose securely in a strong box in Dr. Cronkite's St. Joseph home.

The pens came to Dr. Cronkite from Mrs. A. B. Lawrence of Warsaw, N. Y., after the death of her husband, Colonel Lawrence, who in his lifetime was an indefatigable collector of relics. No better history of the pens probably is to be desired than the one written out in Colonel Lawrence's handwriting:

"The pens in this box, one a quill, the other steel, marked with the date April 10, 1865, are the ones used in signing the General R. E. Lee surrender papers in the Colonel Wilmer McLean house, where the surrender took place at Appomattox Court House, Va., April 9, 1865, and were given to me in the McLean house April 10, 1865, as souvenirs with a piece of the table on which General Lee signed the surrender dictated by General Grant. The piece of table was given to me the next day in my office in the sheriff's room of the courthouse by Colonel Wilmer McLean, with a certificate of its history. The sheriff was William Daniel Hix, now of Hixburg, Appomattox, Va., to whom I turned over the surplus surrender property for distribution among the poor and deserving of the vicinity of the surrender by verbal order of General Grant to me in the presence of Major General John Gibbon, president of the commission led by General Grant to close up surrender matters at the courthouse. The tagged piece of paper in which the pens were wrapped was part of a larger piece on the table on which the surrender papers were written and which I took from the table to wrap the pens in as they were handed to me by General Potter, our Twenty-fourth army corps chief of staff, for the valued souvenirs they were.

"These pens have never been but once dipped with ink and then at the soldiers' fair in New York City for my signature the evening General Grant was there. A. B. LAWRENCE."

The lamp pictured herewith stood in the McLean house at the time of the surrender and was undoubtedly used to light up the drafting of documents relating to the surrender, although the first papers were written and signed before dark. The lamp was sold recently in New York.

Memorial Day.

With acclamation and with trumpet tone, With prayer and praise and with triumphal state Of warlike columns and the moving weight

Of men whose firmness, never overthrown, Proved itself steadfast, which did add to fate Speed, vision, certainty and ever grown More terrible as more enduring shone A fire of retribution and swift hate, All visibly advancing—with these we keep Unsullied in our breast and pure and white

The spirit of gratitude that may not sleep— A nation's safeguard against shame and blight— Since sacred memories and the tears men weep Alone can keep a nation at its height. —Langdon Elwyn Mitchell in Century Magazine.

The Union Soldier's Privilege.

A peculiar privilege came to the men who fought for the Union. There is no other civil war in history the stings of which were removed before the men who did the fighting passed from the stage of life. So that we owe those men something more than a legal re-establishment of the Union. We owe them the spiritual re-establishment of the Union, for they not only reunited states, but they reunited the spirits of men. That is their unique achievement, unexampled anywhere else in the annals of mankind, that the very men whom they overcame in battle join in praise and gratitude that the Union was saved.—President Wilson.

SNAPSHOTS OF NOTABLE PERSONS

A. Mitchell Palmer, Chief Justice Court of Claims.

Alexander Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, who was recently appointed chief justice of the federal court of claims, finished his third term as a representative to congress on March 4 last. Last fall Mr. Mitchell went before the people of Pennsylvania as a candidate for the United States senate on the Democratic ticket, but was beaten at the polls by Boies Penrose. Republican, who has held down the job since 1897.

During Mr. Palmer's career as a congressman he was active and aggressive and became one of the recognized leaders of his party. He was a steady and forceful worker for President Wilson at the Baltimore convention and since the advent of the present administration has been one of Mr. Wilson's most trusted allies on the floor of the house.

Judge Palmer is credited with defeating Charles M. Schwab in a labor inquiry. When the Democrats of the Sixty-third congress met in caucus Leader Underwood, who called Palmer his "strong right arm," nominated him for caucus chairman, and he was unanimously elected. As such it was his duty to preside over the Democratic caucus in the house more than any other chairman ever did, for the great tariff and currency bills were both debated and considered line by line in Democratic caucus for weeks, entailing much labor for Mr. Palmer.

A native of Stroudsburg, Pa., Judge Palmer was educated at Swarthmore college, from which he was graduated in 1891 with the highest honors in his class. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1893. Judge Palmer has practiced his profession with success and is a director in several industrial and financial institutions. He is now chairman of the executive campaign committee of the Democratic national committee.

AIRSHIP SCOUTING

The Aeroplane as a Range Finder in Modern Warfare.

AIDING THE MAN AT THE GUN.

How the Enemy Target Is Located and the Information Conveyed to the Artillery Officers—A Code System That Is Simplicity Itself.

Range finding by aviators is a recognized part of modern warfare, as carefully worked out as any other branch of the service.

The big gun's range is estimated in miles nowadays instead of in yards, as formerly. More often than not the gunners do not see the target at which they are aiming, and the men in the target do not see the spot whence destruction is being pumped at them. High hills and broad valleys probably intervene. But circling about in the air is the busy aeroplane which is establishing contact between the gun and its objective point.

It is essential, of course, that the man in the airship and the man at the gun have a constant system of communication. Seemingly difficult, this is a feat that is simplicity itself. The airship carries certain lights or smoke bombs with which it can convey information to the watchers on the ground. The gunners have great strips of white material which can be formed into letters of the alphabet and can be seen from the airship.

The rest is merely a letter of codes and mechanics. If the letter X means "observe for range" and the letter V means "observe for effect of fire" the air man can convey to the marksman whatever information they may desire.

The first thing, of course, is to locate the target. The air man goes up to a prearranged altitude and scouts about until he finds it. When he is directly over it he drops various lights in some understood combination of numbers or colors. The aviator's height is known, and the distance at which the lights are dropped can be ascertained by instruments. The distance then between the gun and the target becomes a simple problem of triangulation.

The location and distance being known, as well as the proper direction, the aviator gets the signal, "Observe for line of fire." A shell or so is thrown in the general direction of the target. As soon as the correct line is found the aviator gives the proper signal and then gets the signal to "observe for range." The first shell falls short. The second perhaps overshoots. The third perhaps reaches its mark. The aviator signals "range," and the real bombardment is on.

If the gunner wishes to know whether his shells are timed to explode at the right place he signals to the aviator, "Observe for fuse." If he wishes to learn the effect of the cannonade he signals, "Observe for effect of fire." In this way a complete check of all that is going on is obtained.

Rarely, except on the preliminary scouting expedition, does the aviator attempt to fly over the enemy's position. Once he has located the target that part of his work is done. It is naturally the riskiest part, for his appearance is certain to make him the target for defensive aeroplane batteries and probably for a duel with a hostile aeroplane. So he flies back into a safer zone.

His subsequent position is decided largely by weather conditions. When the sun is shining he tries to keep from being between his battery and the sun, because if the gunners have to face the sun to find him it is hard for them to read the signals accurately. If the sun is shining toward the target the aviator gets behind his battery. If the sun is behind the battery the aviator gets between it and the target.

In the early maneuvers, when he is signaling the line of fire, he tries to fly in a regular ellipse at a stated altitude. When "observing for range" he flies in an elongated figure 8. The purpose of this is to enable him to move toward the target in his turns. In this way fire can be observed at every moment.

It is obvious that to insure the effectiveness of all this scientific and mechanical knowledge must be required. Modern shells are so constructed that they can be exploded at any desired height or distance. A shell that bursts too soon is practically valueless, while one that bursts too late loses much of its efficacy. An error of a few feet in the calculation of the aeroplane's height or in the target's distance would seriously impair the effectiveness of the fire.

The captive balloon is used for similar observation purposes, but it is not nearly so valuable as the aeroplane because of the latter's greater mobility and its ability to get right over the target and then get away again.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Lee surrender papers in the Colonel Wilmer McLean house, where the surrender took place at Appomattox Court House, Va., April 9, 1865, and were given to me in the McLean house April 10, 1865, as souvenirs with a piece of the table on which General Lee signed the surrender dictated by General Grant. The piece of table was given to me the next day in my office in the sheriff's room of the courthouse by Colonel Wilmer McLean, with a certificate of its history. The sheriff was William Daniel Hix, now of Hixburg, Appomattox, Va., to whom I turned over the surplus surrender property for distribution among the poor and deserving of the vicinity of the surrender by verbal order of General Grant to me in the presence of Major General John Gibbon, president of the commission left by General Grant to close up surrender matters at the courthouse. The tagged piece of paper in which the pens are wrapped was part of a larger piece on the table on which the surrender papers were written and which I took from the table to wrap the pens in as they were handed to me by General Potter, our Twenty-fourth army corps chief of staff, for the valued souvenirs they were.

"These pens have never been but once dipped with ink and then at the soldiers' fair in New York City for my signature the evening General Grant was there.

The lamp pictured herewith stood in the McLean house at the time of the surrender and was undoubtedly used to light up the drafting of documents relating to the surrender, although the first papers were written and signed before dark. The lamp was sold recently in New York.

Memorial Day.
With acclamation and with trumpet tone,
With prayer and praise and with triumphal state
Of warlike columns and the moving weight
Of men whose firmness, never overthrown,
Proved itself steadfast, which did add to fate.

Speed, vision, certainty and ever grown
More terrible as more enduring shone
A fire of retribution and swift hate,
All visibly advancing—with these we keep Unsubdued in our breast and pure and white

The spirit of gratitude that may not sleep—
A nation's safeguard against shame and blight—
Since sacred memories and the tears men weep Alone can keep a nation at its height.
—Langdon Elwyn Mitchell in Century Magazine.

The Union Soldier's Privilege.

A peculiar privilege came to the men who fought for the Union. There is no other civil war in history the stings of which were removed before the men who did the fighting passed from the stage of life. So that we owe those men something more than a legal re-establishment of the Union. We owe them the spiritual re-establishment of the Union, for they not only reunited states, but they reunited the spirits of men. That is their unique achievement, unexampled anywhere else in the annals of mankind, that the very men whom they overcame in battle join in praise and gratitude that the Union was saved.—President Wilson.

SNAPSHOTS OF NOTABLE PERSONS

A. Mitchell Palmer, Chief Justice Court of Claims.

Alexander Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, who was recently appointed chief justice of the federal court of claims, finished his third term as a representative to congress on March 4 last. Last fall Mr. Mitchell went before the people of Pennsylvania as a candidate for the United States senate on the Democratic ticket, but was beaten at the polls by Boies Penrose, Republican, who has held down the job since 1897.

During Mr. Palmer's career as a congressman he was active and aggressive and became one of the recognized leaders of his party. He was a steady and forceful worker for President Wilson at the Baltimore convention and since the advent of the present administration has been one of Mr. Wilson's most trusted allies on the floor of the house.

Judge Palmer is credited with defeating Charles M. Schwab in a labor inquiry. When the Democrats of the Sixty-third congress met in caucus Leader Underwood, who called Palmer his "strong right arm," nominated him for caucus chairman, and he was unanimously elected. As such it was his duty to preside over the Democratic caucus in the house more than any other chairman ever did, for the great tariff and currency bills were both debated and considered line by line in Democratic caucus for weeks, entailing much labor for Mr. Palmer.

A native of Stroudsburg, Pa., Judge Palmer was educated at Swarthmore college, from which he was graduated in 1891 with the highest honors in his class. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1893. Judge Palmer has practiced his profession with success and is a director in several industrial and financial institutions. He is now chairman of the executive campaign committee of the Democratic national committee.

AIRSHIP SCOUTING

The Aeroplane as a Range Finder in Modern Warfare.

AIDING THE MAN AT THE GUN.

How the Enemy Target Is Located and the Information Conveyed to the Artillery Officers—A Code System That Is Simplicity Itself.

Range finding by aviators is a recognized part of modern warfare, as carefully worked out as any other branch of the service.

The big gun's range is estimated in miles nowadays instead of in yards, as formerly. More often than not the gunners do not see the target at which they are aiming, and the men in the target do not see the spot whence destruction is being pumped at them. High hills and broad valleys probably intervene. But circling about in the air is the busy aeroplane which is establishing contact between the gun and its objective point.

It is essential, of course, that the man in the airship and the man at the gun have a constant system of communication. Seemingly difficult, this is a feat that is simplicity itself. The airship carries certain lights or smoke bombs with which it can convey information to the watchers on the ground. The gunners have great strips of white material which can be formed into letters of the alphabet and can be seen from the airship.

The rest is merely a letter of codes and mechanics. If the letter X means "observe for range" and the letter V means "observe for effect of fire" the air man can convey to the marksman whatever information they may desire.

The first thing, of course, is to locate the target. The air man goes up to a prearranged altitude and scouts about until he finds it. When he is directly over it he drops various lights in some understood combination of numbers or colors. The aviator's height is known, and the distance at which the lights are dropped can be ascertained by instruments. The distance then between the gun and the target becomes a simple problem of triangulation.

The location and distance being known, as well as the proper direction, the aviator gets the signal, "Observe for line of fire." A shell or so is thrown in the general direction of the target. As soon as the correct line is found the aviator gives the proper signal and then gets the signal to "observe for range." The first shell falls short. The second perhaps overshoots. The third perhaps reaches its mark. The aviator signals "Range," and the real bombardment is on.

If the gunner wishes to know whether his shells are timed to explode at the right place he signals to the aviator, "Observe for fuse." If he wishes to learn the effect of the cannonade he signals, "Observe for effect of fire." In this way a complete check of all that is going on is obtained.

Rarely, except on the preliminary scouting expedition, does the aviator attempt to fly over the enemy's position. Once he has located the target that part of his work is done. It is naturally the riskiest part, for his appearance is certain to make him the target for defensive aeroplane batteries and probably for a duel with a hostile aeroplane. So he flies back into a safer zone.

His subsequent position is decided largely by weather conditions. When the sun is shining he tries to keep from being between his battery and the sun, because if the gunners have to face the sun to find him it is hard for them to read the signals accurately. If the sun is shining toward the target the aviator gets behind his battery. If the sun is behind the battery the aviator gets between it and the target.

In the early maneuvers, when he is signaling the line of fire, he tries to fly in a regular ellipse at a stated altitude. When "observing for range" he flies in an elongated figure 8. The purpose of this is to enable him to move toward the target in his turns. In this way fire can be observed at every moment.

It is obvious that to insure the effectiveness of all this scientific and mechanical knowledge must be required. Modern shells are so constructed that they can be exploded at any desired height or distance. A shell that bursts too soon is practically valueless, while one that bursts too late loses much of its efficacy. An error of a few feet in the calculation of the aeroplane's height or in the target's distance would seriously impair the effectiveness of the fire.

The captive balloon is used for similar observation purposes, but it is not nearly so valuable as the aeroplane because of the latter's greater mobility and its ability to get right over the target and then get away again.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

KING THINKS TIME IS NOT OPPORTUNE

Following is the first authoritative statement of Greece's position in the world war crisis. It comes from the king of Greece himself—the dominant figure in an old-world monarchy whose history has been identified with civilization's progress for centuries.

BY HENRY WOOD

(Copyright, 1915, by United Press)

Athens, Greece, May 12.—"Greece can abandon her neutrality only in the event that the interests of Hellenism as a whole may at some future moment demand it. The interests of Hellenism as a whole have been the one and only policy of Greece to the present moment. This policy she will continue to the end."

In these words, spoken in quick, energetic English, King Constantine of Greece outlined to me the attitude of his country regarding the great war. He had received me in his study in his palace, which he occupied while crown prince and which he now retains by preference. This palace is smaller than the main royal palace and has a more home-like character and atmosphere. There he lives, surrounded by the queen, sister of the kaiser, and their six children—three princes and three princesses—a perhaps the most domestic life that any European monarch enjoys. His majesty wore the uniform of a Greek general and his entire manner was essentially that of a military man.

"In the recent decision of the crown," he continued, "that Greece could not accept the invitation of the Allies to enter the war at that time, which resulted in the resignation of my prime minister, I had only that honest difference of opinion to which every man is entitled. With Greece situated between two contending blocks of powers, I have had but one policy, and that was to act for the best interests of Hellenism. The moment was not opportune for Greece to abandon her neutrality nor would her interests have been best served by so doing at that time. Should Premier Venizelos later be returned to power we will work together harmoniously as before for the common realization of Greece's national aspirations."

"What might be those aspirations, your majesty?" was asked.

"They are merely the desires for national duty to which the Greek people, by reason of their long historical past, believe they are entitled," was the reply. "It ever has been the mission of Greece to carry civilization to the entire world. As Greece expands now and in her future capacity, that mission will be increased."

In passing from the subject of

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Greece's war attitude, the king spoke of the Greek immigration to the United States, saying:

"Your capacity for absorption of the races is marvelous. Already 300,000 of our Greeks have found ample opportunity for education and development in the United States."

The king spoke with the utmost enthusiasm about the battleships Mississippi and Idaho, which Greece purchased from the United States at a critical moment, and which at that time became an important instrument for peace, giving the Greek navy a preponderance over the Turkish, which it has since maintained.

"Have you seen those warships," he inquired, "have you been on board of them? They are magnificent ships and I have been on them under all conditions. When firing their gunnery is excellent. They have contributed materially toward the development of the Greek navy and will continue to do so for years."

WEEK WITH GERMAN ARMY

By Carl Ackerman, United Press.

With German Army at Brussels, May 13.—After a week with the German army I find absolute confidence in the ranks of the German army that the allies are entirely unable to penetrate the German lines. Equal confidence of success is expressed by the German offensive in the vicinity of Ypres. The officials have a growing good feeling toward the Americans. I breakfasted with these officers who escorted me along the lines, and in doing so picked up a shell marked "made in the U. S." and commented regretfully on the loss of life occasioned by the sinking of the Lusitania, and said that it was desirable that Americans should avoid belligerent ships.

OPENING GAME WILL BE MADE BIG AFFAIR

The Little Falls Transcript says: Brainerd will open its baseball season next Saturday with a game on its own grounds against the Verdale aggregation. The opening game will be made a big affair, with the mayor, of course, heaving the first wide one. Larson, around whom the league troubles of 1912 centered, and Sig Shaffo, the lanky outfielder, are out of the line-up, although Shaffo may be back. Harris Gourd is doing most of the hurling for Verdale, while Helme Thiels is again behind the bat.

How Could He Tell?

George was told to draw a line on the blackboard and write a sentence. Instead of obeying instructions to the letter he wrote the sentence first.

"George, why didn't you draw the line first, as I told you to do?" was the teacher's impatient inquiry.

George regarded her with wondering eyes. Surely the ways of women were beyond comprehension. Then he asked seriously:

"How could I tell where I'd want that line till I got it wrote?"—Indianapolis News.

Much Needed Assistance.

"Here's a man suing for divorce because his wife goes through his pockets," said Mrs. Smith, reading from the newspaper. "What would you do if you woke up and found me going through your pockets?"

WITHDRAW "AD" OF WARNING

Germans Consider Notice to Have Been Sufficient.

Washington, May 13.—The German embassy notified by letter and telegraph newspapers in all of the larger cities of the United States to discontinue the publication of the advertisement warning Americans against transatlantic travel on belligerent ships.

No reason for discontinuing the advertisement is given in the letters and telegrams but it was said at the embassy that it was considered to have been sufficient.

MISJUDGED DEFENSE OF THE DARDANELLES

J. W. T. Mason writes interestingly of the situation at the Dardanelles. The French force sent to dominate the Adriatic side was too weak to hold its foothold, and was brought back in transports. The British troops hold the shore lines and must have been better prepared than the French.

New York, May 13.—About three weeks have passed since the British army under Gen. Hamilton landed on the Gallipoli peninsula. During that time little progress has been made in the effort to capture the Dardanelles fortifications from the rear and England is being warned the work will be long and tedious. It is probable the allies have once more underestimated the power of their opponents. The attempt to force the Dardanelles showed the admiralty at London and Paris had not rightly judged the defensive power of the Turkish forts and now it is beginning to appear as if the war departments of France and England have been similarly remiss. Coincidentally with the beginning of the Gallipoli campaign a large British force estimated at between 20,000 and 30,000 was thrown ashore at Enos, the nearest point to Adrianople on the Gulf of Saros. This army seems to have been swallowed up. It cannot have met with any success or the British government desirous of giving Englishmen all possible encouragement would not fail to announce the facts. How can the Turks have administered a crushing defeat and keeping the matter secret. The more probable fact is that the force is stuck in its trenches and a deadlock results. The inference therefore is that the force is too weak to exercise an influence in the campaign against the Turkish capital.

COURT'S DECISION IN EXCHANGE CASE

South St. Paul Live Stock Exchange Regulations Upheld.

The right of the South St. Paul Live Stock Exchange to discipline its members for violating its rules and regulations was upheld by Judge Michael in handing down a decision March 31 when the case of the Jas. R. Kirk Co. versus the South St. Paul Live Stock Exchange, to prevent the exchange from collecting a fine imposed, was up for trial in his court. The Jas. R. Kirk Co. had been accused of paying rebates and having several solicitors at work through the Northwest, which is in open violation of the rules of the exchange to which every candidate voluntarily subscribes when becoming a member.

The rules and regulations are so constructed as to make dishonesty impossible when rigidly observed. The Kirk Co. having been accused of violating the rules and regulations had been cited to appear before the board of directors of the exchange for investigation, which on account of no precedent ever having been established for the conduct of any investigation, proceeded along lines that appeared fair and just, but which did not meet the approval of the court, who decided that on account of certain technical irregularities in the preliminary conduct of the case there was no proceedings, thus leaving it open for the exchange to retry in a more regular manner the pending charges against the Kirk Co. The full decision of the court follows:

"I don't think the court will ever be in a better position to decide this case than right now when the facts and the argument of counsel are fresh in the court's mind.

"I have no difficulty in holding that the provisions of Rule 14 of this association are valid. I think their evident purpose is to make for honesty in the transaction of business.

"The disciplinary provisions in Rule 12, I think, furnish a reasonably plain outline of what must be done when charges are filed against a member. Section 1 provides for the filing of the charges. Section 2 provides for serving a copy of the charges on the accused and fixing a time for hearing. Section 3 also provides that the board of directors shall make an examination of the charges. To my mind, if this contemplates that the board of directors are to make an ex-parte examination, it would so violate the rules of natural justice as to be against public policy and be void, because these disciplinary provisions go directly to affect the membership and property rights of the defendant in those proceedings. I don't believe, however, that is the correct construction of this rule. I don't think there is any difference in the word 'examination' used in this rule from 'examination' used in the word 'trial' used in insurance bylaws. I think they both contemplate the same thing, and, so construed, the rule is evidently fair and valid. That does not necessarily mean that a trial must be surrounded with all the technicalities and formalities of a trial in court, but it does mean that it must conform to the essential features constituting a trial as known to the law of the land, viz., the right to be confronted with witnesses, the right to cross-examine them.

"The court has no difficulty whatever in finding that this board of directors acted in good faith, and that it believed it was acting within the powers conferred upon it by these rules; but I think it is quite apparent that the board of directors honestly mistook their powers and functions in the premises.

"It appears from the evidence and the records that two witnesses were examined in these hearings in the absence and without knowledge of the accused. It also appears that the evidence upon which the board of directors largely depended in arriving at its judgment was the statement which the committee of the board obtained from Mr. Johnson. This evidence—if it be such—was taken without notice to the accused and without their knowledge. So it seems to me that there was such irregularity in the conduct of this examination or trial (whichever it may be called) as to vitiate the judgment arrived at. I think there has been nothing done by the accused in this instance to waive those irregularities. In fact they seem to have protested against the non-production of the witnesses at the examination, and also objected to the character of the evidence as hearsay.

"It is not necessary to pass upon the fact of whether or not this evidence produced before the board had any probative value. I may say that I am not particularly impressed with the attitude that the plaintiffs here assumed in that investigation—they seem to have been evasive and antagonistic all the way through, and if the court could see its way clear, upon legal principles, to sustain this conviction by the board, it would be disposed to do so, but I am free to confess that I cannot see a legal way of doing that.

"For the reasons stated, the decree will be to annul and set aside the conviction complained of and to enjoin a suspension for the nonpayment of the fine imposed. Without prejudice, however, to further trials or proceedings upon these charges by the board of directors of the defendant exchange, as it may be advised."

TAFT WRITES TO WILSON

Gives His Views of What Action Should Be Taken.

Washington, May 13.—President Wilson received a letter from former President Taft, expressing confidence in his ability to handle the situation growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania. The president has written a reply to Mr. Taft thanking him warmly.

Mr. Taft in his letter expressed his views of what should be done in the present situation. While the letter was not made public it is understood that Mr. Taft and the president are in substantial accord in the general principles underlying the attitude of the United States.

Mr. Taft gave his own suggestions of what should be done by the United States which, it was said, did not differ materially from the course the president has adopted. The White House let it be known that the president was highly gratified over Mr. Taft's action.

HOW TO SHAKE HANDS.

Get the Grip First, According to a Mercantile Recipe.

We have found that when you approach the person to shake hands if you will get the grip on their hand before they have time to grip yours you have gained an advantage. The hand should be slipped well into or over the hand of the person you want to shake with—that is, push the thumb and forefinger of your hand well into the thumb and forefinger of the person with whom you are shaking. Do it rather quickly, and the instant you feel that your hand is in place bring the grip into play instantly. Don't grip the hand hard enough to cause pain to the person with whom you are shaking, but yet give him a good firm grip. After you have practiced a little you can tell just about how hard you can squeeze without hurting the other person.

Before your hands touch be sure that you are looking the other person square in the eye. Don't wait until you have hold of his hand, but watch his eye instantly, and if you will watch the eye of the other one very closely you will notice that when you bring the grip into play you can see a response in the features of the other person.

Then it is a good idea immediately when you feel your hand touch the other person to place your left hand on his elbow, not below the elbow, but back of it, so as to be able to pull his arm, as it were, toward yours. Don't pull very hard, but just be firm about it. Take hold of the elbow joint with just a little firmness. Of course these things are all done practically at the same time, and it will take a little practice for you to be able to do this and get the best results.—Merchants' Trade Review.

KING THINKS TIME IS NOT OPPORTUNE

Following is the first authoritative statement of Greece's position in the world war crisis. It comes from the king of Greece himself—the dominant figure in an old-world monarchy whose history has been identified with civilization's progress for centuries.

The interests of Hellenism as a whole have been the one and only policy of Greece to the present moment. This policy she will continue to the end."

In these words, spoken in quick, energetic English, King Constantine of Greece outlined to me the attitude of his country regarding the great war. He had received me in his study in his palace, which he occupied while crown prince and which he now retains by preference. This palace is smaller than the main royal palace and has a more home-like character and atmosphere. There he lives, surrounded by the queen, sister of the kaiser, and their six children—three princes and three princesses—perhaps the most domestic life that any European monarch enjoys. His majesty wore the uniform of a Greek general and his entire manner was essentially that of a military man.

"In the recent decision of the crown," he continued, "that Greece could not accept the invitation of the Allies to enter the war at that time, which resulted in the resignation of my prime minister, I had only that honest difference of opinion to which every man is entitled. With Greece situated between two contending blocks of powers, I have had but one policy, and that was to act for the best interests of Hellenism. The moment was not opportune for Greece to abandon her neutrality nor would her interests have been best served by so doing at that time. Should Premier Venizelos later be returned to power we will work together harmoniously as before for the common realization of Greece's national aspirations."

"What might be those aspirations, your majesty?" was asked.

"They are merely the desires for national duty to which the Greek people, by reason of their long historical past, believe they are entitled," was the reply. "It ever has been the mission of Greece to carry civilization to the entire world. As Greece expands now and in her future capacity, that mission will be increased."

In passing from the subject of

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Greece's war attitude, the king spoke of the Greek immigration to the United States, saying:

"Your capacity for absorption of the races is marvelous. Already 300,000 of our Greeks have found ample opportunity for education and development in the United States."

The king spoke with the utmost enthusiasm about the battleships Mississippi and Idaho, which Greece purchased from the United States at a critical moment, and which at that time became an important instrument for peace, giving the Greek navy a preponderance over the Turkish, which it has since maintained.

"Have you seen those warships," he inquired, "have you been on board of them? They are magnificent ships and I have been on them under all conditions. When firing their gunnery is excellent. They have contributed materially toward the development of the Greek navy and will continue to do so for years."

WEEK WITH GERMAN ARMY

By Carl Ackerman, United Press.

With German Army at Brussels, May 13—After a week with the German army I find absolute confidence in the German army that the allies are entirely unable to penetrate the German lines. Equal confidence of success is expressed by the German offensive in the vicinity of Ypres. The officials have a growing good feeling toward the Americans. I breakfasted with these officers who escorted me along the lines, and in doing so picked up a shell marked "made in the U. S." and commented regretfully on the loss of life occasioned by the sinking of the Lusitania, and said that it was desirable that Americans should avoid belligerent ships.

OPENING GAME WILL BE MADE BIG AFFAIR

The Little Falls Transcript says: Brainerd will open its baseball season next Saturday with a game on its own grounds against the Verndale aggregation. The opening game will be made a big affair, with the mayor, of course, heading the first wide one, Larson, around whom the league troubles of 1912 centered, and Sig Sheffield, the lanky outfielder, are out of the line-up, although Sheffield may be back. Harris Gould is doing most of the hurling for Verndale, while Heine Thiels is again behind the bat.

How Could He Tell?

George was told to draw a line on the blackboard and write a sentence. Instead of obeying instructions to the letter he wrote the sentence first.

"George, why didn't you draw the line first, as I told you to do?" was the teacher's impatient inquiry.

George regarded her with wondering eyes. Surely the ways of women were beyond comprehension. Then he asked seriously:

"How could I tell where I'd want that line till I got it wrote?"—Indianapolis News.

WITHDRAW "AD" OF WARNING

Germans Consider Notice to Have Been Sufficient.

Washington, May 13.—The German embassy notified by letter and telegraph newspapers in all of the larger cities of the United States to discontinue the publication of the advertisement warning Americans against transatlantic travel on belligerent ships.

No reason for discontinuing the advertisement is given in the letters and telegrams but it was said at the embassy that it was considered to have been sufficient.

MISJUDGED DEFENSE OF THE DARDANELLES

J. W. T. Mason writes interestingly of the situation at the Dardanelles. The French force sent to dominate the Adriatic side was too weak to hold its foothold, and was brought back in transports. The British troops hold the shore lines and must have been better prepared than the French.

New York, May 13—About three weeks have passed since the British army under Gen. Hamilton landed on the Gallipoli peninsula. During that time little progress has been made in the effort to capture the Dardanelles fortifications from the rear and England is being warned the work will be long and tedious. It is probable the allies have once more underestimated the power of their opponents. The attempt to force the Dardanelles showed the admiralty at London and Paris had not rightly judged the defensive power of the Turkish forts and now it is beginning to appear as if the war departments of France and England have been similarly remiss. Coincidentally with the beginning of the Gallipoli campaign a large British force estimated at between 20,000 and 30,000 was thrown ashore at Enos, the nearest point to Adrinople on the Gulf of Sarce. This army seems to have been swallowed up. It cannot have met with any success or the British government desirous of giving Englishmen all possible encouragement would not fail to announce the facts. How can the Turks have administered a crushing defeat and keeping the matter secret. The more probable fact is that the force is stuck in its trenches and a deadlock results. The inference therefore is that the force is too weak to exercise an influence in the campaign against the Turkish capital.

It is known the French force sent to dominate the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles was too weak to hold its foothold, and was brought back to the transports. Hence the French must have been worst prepared for the offensive than the English, since the British troops at least hold the shore line. At the very beginning of operations against Constantinople, it was pointed out that the greatest danger to the allies would be that the Turks would be held in contempt as a fighting force. This blunder seems to have been committed. Operations have been proceeding long enough to enable the Turks to prepare elaborate entrenchments and the allies seem reluctant to spare forces enough from the western front to capture Constantinople. Luck seems to have been trusted to in great measure.

COURT'S DECISION IN EXCHANGE CASE

South St. Paul Live Stock Exchange Regulations Upheld.

The right of the South St. Paul Live Stock Exchange to discipline its members for violating its rules and regulations was upheld by Judge Michael in handing down a decision March 31 when the case of the Jas. R. Kirk Co. versus the South St. Paul Live Stock Exchange, to prevent the exchange from collecting a fine imposed, was up for trial in his court. The Jas. R. Kirk Co. had been accused of paying rebates and having several solicitors at work through the Northwest, which is in open violation of the rules of the exchange to which every candidate voluntarily subscribes when becoming a member.

The rules and regulations are so constructed as to make dishonesty impossible when rigidly observed. The Kirk Co. having been accused of violating the rules and regulations had been cited to appear before the board of directors of the exchange for investigation, which on account of no precedent ever having been established for the conduct of any investigation, proceeded along lines that appeared fair and just, but which did not meet the approval of the court. who decided that on account of certain technical irregularities in the preliminary conduct of the case there was no proceedings, thus leaving it open for the exchange to retry in a more regular manner the pending charges against the Kirk Co. The full decision of the court follows:

"I don't think the court will ever be in a better position to decide this case than right now when the facts and the argument of counsel are fresh in the court's mind.

"I have no difficulty in holding that the provisions of Rule 14 of this association are valid. I think their evident purpose is to make for honesty in the transaction of business.

"The disciplinary provisions in Rule 12, I think, furnish a reasonably plain outline of what must be done when charges are filed against a member. Section 1 provides for the filing of the charges. Section 2 provides for the serving of a copy of the charges on the accused and fixing a time for hearing. Section 2 also provides that the board of directors shall make an examination of the charges. To my mind, if this contemplates that the board of directors are to make an ex-parte examination, it would so violate the rules of natural justice as to be against public policy and be void, because these disciplinary provisions go directly to affect the membership and property rights of the defendant in those proceedings. I don't believe, however, that is the correct construction of this rule. I don't think there is any difference in the word 'examination' used in this rule from what there is in the word 'trial' used in insurance bylaws. I think they both contemplate the same thing, and, so construed, the rule is evidently fair and valid. That does not necessarily mean that a trial must be surrounded with all the technicalities and formalities of a trial in court, but it does mean that it must conform to the essential features constituting a trial as known to the law of the land, viz., the right to be confronted with witnesses, the right to cross-examine them.

"The court has no difficulty whatever in finding that this board of directors acted in good faith, and that it believed it was acting within the powers conferred upon it by these rules; but I think it is quite apparent that the board of directors honestly mistook their powers and functions in the premises.

"It appears from the evidence and the records that two witnesses were examined in these hearings in the absence and without knowledge of the accused. It also appears that the evidence upon which the board of directors largely depended in arriving at its judgment was the statement which the committee of the board obtained from Mr. Johnson. This evidence—if it be such—was taken without notice to the accused and without their knowledge. So it seems to me that there was such irregularity in the conduct of this examination or trial (whichever it may be called) as to vitiate the judgment arrived at. I think there has been nothing done by the accused in this instance to waive those irregularities. In fact they seem to have protested against the non-production of the witnesses at the examination, and also objected to the character of the evidence as hearsay.

"It is not necessary to pass upon the fact of whether or not this evidence produced before the board had any probative value. I may say that I am not particularly impressed with the attitude that the plaintiffs here assumed in that investigation—they seem to have been evasive and antagonistic all the way through, and if the court could see its way clear, upon legal principles, to sustain this conviction by the board, it would be disposed to do so, but I am free to confess that I cannot see a legal way of doing that.

TAFT WRITES TO WILSON

Gives His Views of What Action Should Be Taken.

Washington, May 13.—President Wilson received a letter from former President Taft, expressing confidence in his ability to handle the situation growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania. The president has written a reply to Mr. Taft thanking him warmly.

Mr. Taft in his letter expressed his views of what should be done in the present situation. While the letter was not made public it is understood that Mr. Taft and the president are in substantial accord in the general principles underlying the attitude of the United States.

Mr. Taft gave his own suggestions of what should be done by the United States which, it was said, did not differ materially from the course the president has adopted. The White House let it be known that the president was highly gratified over Mr. Taft's action.

HOW TO SHAKE HANDS.

Get the Grip First, According to a Mercantile Recipe.

We have found that when you approach the person to shake hands if you will get the grip on their hand before they have time to grip yours you have gained an advantage. The hand should be slipped well into or over the hand of the person you want to shake with—that is, push the thumb and forefinger of your hand well into the thumb and forefinger of the person with whom you are shaking. Do it rather quickly, and the instant you feel that your hand is in place bring the grip into play instantly. Don't grip the hand hard enough to cause pain to the person with whom you are shaking, but yet give him a good, firm grip. After you have practiced a little you can tell just about how hard you can squeeze without hurting the other person.

Before your hands touch be sure that you are looking the other person square in the eye. Don't wait until you have hold of his hand, but watch his eye instantly, and if you will watch the eye of the other one very closely you will notice that when you bring the grip into play you can see a response in the features of the other person.

Then it is a good idea immediately when you feel your hand touch the other person to place your left hand on his elbow, not below the elbow, but back of it, so as to be able to pull his arm, as it were, toward yours. Don't pull very hard, but just be firm about it. Take hold of the elbow joint with just a little firmness. Of course these things are all done practically at the same time, and it will take a little practice for you to be able to do this and get the best results.—Merchants' Trade Review.

A MIGHTY mean man who will swipe the Real Tobacco Chew. Easy enough to ask—and everybody knows that users are glad to tell other men about the Real Tobacco Chew.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

SPRING WATER TO BE EXAMINED

B. M. Mohler, Chemist of the State Board of Health, was in Brainerd Yesterday

TAKES SAMPLES OF THE WATER

Chemical and Bacteriological Analyses are to be Made, Results Reported Soon

At the request of the city authorities, B. M. Mohler, chemist for the Division of Sanitation of the State Board of Health, made an investigation of the recently completed test wells for the proposed water supply at Spring Bay.

Two groups of wells have been installed. One group was finished about three weeks ago, the other on May 8. Both have been pumped almost constantly since the time of their completion. They are located at the base of the hill forming the higher area which stretches toward Gilbert lake. The elevation ranges from 87.5 feet at Long lake to 66 feet at Gilbert lake and 42.4 feet at the river level. The ground water levels around these locations will correspond very closely with the surface levels in the open water areas.

These data seem to indicate an abundance of water for the region surrounding the proposed well locations. Intervening ridges are composed almost entirely of a fine sand. The logs of the various test wells also show a fine sand formation to a depth of at least 33 feet.

Samples were obtained from both groups of wells for chemical and bacteriological analyses. The chemical analyses will show the hardness content in water to determine its suitability for industrial uses. The bacteriological analysis will show the sanitary quality by determining the numbers and kinds of bacteria present in the supply. These results will show if the water is satisfactory for use as a drinking supply.

In order to obtain positive results on the permanence and abundance of the supply, further tests will have to be run with pumps of larger capacity.

The expenses connected with this investigation will have to be paid out of funds in the city treasury owing to the fact that the work of the state board of health has been greatly curtailed by the refusal of the legislature to appropriate sufficient money for carrying on this work. The samples will be analyzed at the Minneapolis laboratories of the board and a report of the results will be sent at an early date.

CHAMBER HOLDS AN INTERESTING MEETING

Automobile Traffic Rules and the Enforcement of Them was the Subject of Discussion

A CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

4th of July Committee Report—Nine New Members Elected—State Senate Here June 19

Automobile traffic rules and their enforcement was the subject of wide discussion last evening at the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Though the attendance was small, those present showed much interest in the many subjects introduced.

The lack of an adequate automobile ordinance was called attention to while also the many violations which were being committed by owners of automobiles. It was cited that considerable speeding was done on the paved streets of the city where small children were in the habit of playing which made it doubly dangerous while the disregard by autos and other vehicles of the custom of driving on a certain side of the streets when driving in one direction was also dwelt on.

Mayor Beise being present was called upon and explained these matters had all been brought to the attention of the council and would be given attention very shortly. A campaign of education is to be undertaken through the aid of the schools while owners of automobiles are to be cautioned regarding speeding and violations of the American Automobile Association rules.

A committee of five of which C. E. Parker is chairman appointed to confer with the business houses of the city, professional men, labor and fraternal organizations relative to holding a Fourth of July celebration here reported that he had been unable to sound the sentiment of all parties interested and suggested the committee be given further time in which to confer with all parties. It was also suggested that the matter be brought to the attention of members of the Chamber at the next regular meeting and that an effort be made to get a large turn-out so as to discuss the subject in detail and allow a wide discussion. Accordingly the secretary was instructed to send a notice to every member for the next regular meeting requesting that every member attend and express his views as regard celebrating the Fourth.

Nine new applications for membership were presented as follows:

Patrick McMann, Wm. D. Rose, Donald Baxter, Wm. J. Schwartz, Lars Erickson, W. H. Britton, Wm. Kontos, Geo. J. Ryan, Nick Christoff. A ballot was taken collectively which resulted in a unanimous election of all applications presented. The membership committee are diligently at work scouting for new members and it is anticipated a brisk contest will result at the close of the campaign, May 31st. Already several members are claiming the prizes offered while several are confident they will be able to wear the suit which has been offered by Johnson Bros. & Halberg to the member securing the largest number of applications.

Senator Geo. H. Gardner called attention to the visit by members of the State Senate and Legislature to Brainerd on June 19th and suggested some form of entertainment be arranged which would be in keeping with the plans being carried out by other cities in the state. It was explained that they would travel in a special train arriving in the morning and leaving in the evening which would allow ample time for an automobile trip about the city and possibly a supper in the evening. The matter was referred to the Convention and Entertainment committee together with the Legislative committee to make such arrangements as deemed advisable for the entertainment of the distinguished visitors.

P. B. Nettleton called attention to the custom which other towns were following in acquainting surrounding towns with local business conditions by making trade excursions at frequent intervals to tributary territory. It was suggested that the business men could well afford to take a day off and with their automobiles visit towns near Brainerd and by the aid of advertising matter create a more friendly feeling between the different sections of the county and merchants and business men of Brainerd.

Secretary Hansing called attention to the several suggestions which were made at the recent meeting of the Advisory board relative to paramount issues which should be taken up and carried out by the organization. Following are a few suggestions made. Low electric power rate for manufacturing plants who desire locating in the city.

The effect on local merchants of the semi-monthly pay-day.

Development of old city dam site. Better railroad facilities.

Inviting the Soo Line into Brainerd from Riverton.

Re-population of old mill site.

Advertising our summer resorts and natural playgrounds.

Providing of a central market and monthly market day.

Auto traffic restrictions and their enforcement.

Re-populating of farms now held by speculators.

Providing or building a new county jail.

Construction an automobile river driveway on west side.

All of the above were referred to committees and as soon as time will permit will be submitted showing progress being made.

SPRING WATER TO BE EXAMINED

B. M. Mohler, Chemist of the State Board of Health, was in Brainerd Yesterday

TAKES SAMPLES OF THE WATER

Chemical and Bacteriological Analyses are to be Made, Results Reported Soon

At the request of the city authorities, B. M. Mohler, chemist for the Division of Sanitation of the State Board of Health, made an investigation of the recently completed test wells for the proposed water supply at Spring Bay.

Two groups of wells have been installed. One group was finished about three weeks ago, the other on May 8. Both have been pumped almost constantly since the time of their completion. They are located at the base of the hill forming the higher area which stretches toward Gilbert lake. The elevation ranges from 87.5 feet at Long lake to 66 feet at Gilbert lake and 42.4 feet at the river level. The ground water levels around these locations will correspond very closely with the surface levels in the open water areas.

These data seem to indicate an abundance of water for the region surrounding the proposed well locations. Intervening ridges are composed almost entirely of a fine sand. The logs of the various test wells also show a fine sand formation to a depth of at least 33 feet.

Samples were obtained from both groups of wells for chemical and bacteriological analyses. The chemical analyses will show the hardness content in water to determine its suitability for industrial uses. The bacteriological analysis will show the sanitary quality by determining the numbers and kinds of bacteria present in the supply. These results will show if the water is satisfactory for use as a drinking supply.

In order to obtain positive results on the permanence and abundance of the supply, further tests will have to be run with pumps of larger capacity.

The expenses connected with this investigation will have to be paid out of funds in the city treasury owing to the fact that the work of the state board of health has been greatly curtailed by the refusal of the legislature to appropriate sufficient money for carrying on this work. The samples will be analyzed at the Minneapolis laboratories of the board and a report of the results will be sent at an early date.

CHAMBER HOLDS AN INTERESTING MEETING

Automobile Traffic Rules and the Enforcement of Them was the Subject of Discussion

A CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

4th of July Committee Report—Nine New Members Elected—State Senate Here June 19

Automobile traffic rules and their enforcement was the subject of wide discussion last evening at the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Though the attendance was small, those present showed much interest in the many subjects introduced.

The lack of an adequate automobile ordinance was called attention to while also the many violations which were being committed by owners of automobiles. It was cited that considerable speeding was done on the paved streets of the city where small children were in the habit of playing which made it doubly dangerous while the disregard by autos and other vehicles of the custom of driving on a certain side of the streets when driving in one direction was also dwelt on.

Mayor Beise being present was called upon and explained these matters had all been brought to the attention of the council and would be given attention very shortly. A campaign of education is to be undertaken through the aid of the schools while owners of automobiles are to be cautioned regarding speeding and violations of the American Automobile Association rules.

A committee of five of which C. E. Parker is chairman appointed to confer with the business houses of the city, professional men, labor and fraternal organizations relative to holding a Fourth of July celebration here reported that he had been unable to sound the sentiment of all parties interested and suggested the committee be given further time in which to confer with all parties. It was also suggested that the matter be brought to the attention of members of the Chamber at the next regular meeting and that an effort be made to get a large turn-out so as to discuss the subject in detail and allow a wide discussion. Accordingly the secretary was instructed to send a notice to every member for the next regular meeting requesting that every member attend and express his views as regard celebrating the Fourth.

Nine new applications for membership were presented as follows:

Patrick McManis, Wm. D. Rose, Donald Baxter, Wm. J. Schwartz, Lars Ericsson, W. H. Britton, Wm. Kontos, Geo. J. Ryan, Nick Christoff.

A ballot was taken collectively which resulted in a unanimous election of all applications presented. The membership committee are diligently at work scouting for new members and it is anticipated a brisk contest will result at the close of the campaign, May 31st. Already several members are claiming the prizes offered while several are confident they will be able to wear the suit which has been offered by Johnson Bros. & Halberg to the member securing the largest number of applications.

Senator Geo. H. Gardner called attention to the visit by members of the State Senate and Legislature to Brainerd on June 19th and suggested some form of entertainment be arranged which would be in keeping with the plans being carried out by other cities in the state. It was explained that they would travel in a special train arriving in the morning and leaving in the evening which would allow ample time for an automobile trip about the city and possibly a supper in the evening. The matter was referred to the Convention and Entertainment committee together with the Legislative committee to make such arrangements as deemed advisable for the entertainment of the distinguished visitors.

P. B. Nettleton called attention to the custom which other towns were following in acquainting surrounding towns with local business conditions by making trade excursions at frequent intervals to tributary territory. It was suggested that the business men could well afford to take a day off and with their automobiles visit towns near Brainerd and by the aid of advertising matter create a more friendly feeling between the different sections of the county and merchants and business men of Brainerd.

Secretary Hansing called attention to the several suggestions which were made at the recent meeting of the Advisory board relative to paramount issues which should be taken up and carried out by the organization. Following are a few suggestions made. Low electric power rate for manufacturing plants who desire locating in the city.

The effect on local merchants of the semi-monthly pay-day.

Development of old city dam site. Better railroad facilities.

Inviting the Soo Line into Brainerd from Riverton.

Re-population of old mill site.

Advertising our summer resorts and natural playgrounds.

Providing of a central market and monthly market day.

Auto traffic restrictions and their enforcement.

Re-populating of farms now held by speculators.

Providing or building a new county jail.

Construction an automobile river driveway on west side.

All of the above were referred to committees and as soon as time will permit will be submitted showing progress being made.

CHAPTER XIII.

Craig's surprise was real enough as he opened the back door of the professor's house on the following morning and found Lenora standing on the threshold.

Lenora smiled pleasantly. "I came to this door," she said, "because I wanted a little talk with you." Craig's attitude was perfect. He was mystified but he remained respectful. "Will you come inside?" he invited. She shook her head.

"I am afraid," she confessed, "of what I am going to say being overheard. Come with me down to the garage for a moment."

He opened the doors of the garage, leaving the keys in the lock, and they both passed inside.

"You can say what you please here without the slightest fear of being overheard, miss," Craig remarked.

Lenora nodded, and breathed a prayer to herself. She was nearer the door than Craig by about half a dozen paces. Her hand groped in the little bag she was carrying and gripped something hard. She clenched her teeth for a moment. Then the automatic pistol flashed out through the gloom.

"Craig," she threatened, "if you move I shall shoot you."

It seemed as though the man were a coward. He began to tremble, his lips twitched, his eyes grew larger and rounder.

"What is it?" he faltered. "What do you want?"

"Just this," Lenora said firmly. "I suspect you to be guilty of the crime for which Sanford Quest is in prison. I am going to have you questioned. If you are innocent you have nothing to fear. If you are guilty there will be someone here before long who will extract the truth from you."

The man's face was an epitome of terror. Even his knees shook. Lenora felt herself grow calmer with every moment.

"I am going outside to send a message," she told him. "I shall return presently."

"Don't go," he begged suddenly. "Don't leave me! I am innocent. I have done nothing wrong. If you keep me here, you will do more harm than you can dream of."

"It is for other people to decide about your innocence," Lenora said calmly. "I have nothing to do with that. If you are wise you will stop here quietly."

"Have you said anything to Mr. Ashleigh, miss?" the man asked piteously.

"Not a word."

A expression of relief shone for a moment upon his face. Lenora pointed to a stool.

"Sit down there and wait quietly," she ordered.

He obeyed without a word. She left the place, locked the door securely, and made her way round to the other side of the garage—the side hidden from the house. Here, at the far corner, she drew a little pocket wireless from her bag and set it on the window sill. Very slowly she sent her message:

I have Craig here. In the professor's garage, locked up. If our plan has succeeded, come at once. I am waiting for you.

There was no reply. She sent the message again and again. Suddenly, during a pause, there was a little flash upon the plate. A message was coming to her. She transcribed it with beating heart:

O. K. Coming.

The guard swung open the wicket in front of Quest's cell.

"Young woman to see you, Quest," he announced. "Ten minutes, and no loud talking, please."

Quest moved to the bars. It was Laura who stood there. She wasted very little time in preliminaries. Having satisfied herself that the guard was out of hearing, she leaned as close as she could to Quest.

"Look here," she said, "Lenora's crazy with the idea that Craig has done these jobs—Craig, the professor's servant, you know. We used the phototelegraph yesterday afternoon and saw him burn something in the professor's study. Lenora went up straight away and got hold of the ashes."

"Smart girl," Quest murmured, nodding approvingly. "Well?"

"There are distinct fragments," Laura continued, "of embroidered stuff such as the Salvation Army girl might have been wearing. We put them on one side, but they ain't enough evidence. Lenora's idea is that you should get hold of Craig and hypnotize him into a confession."

"That's all right," Quest replied, "but how am I to get hold of him?"

Laura glanced once more carelessly around to where the guard stood.

"Lenora's gone up to the professor's again this afternoon. She is going to try and get hold of Craig and lock him in the garage. If she succeeds, she will send a message by wireless at three o'clock. It is half-past two now."

"If You Move I Shall Shoot You!"

"Well?" Quest exclaimed. "Well?"

"You can work this guard, if you want to," Lenora went on. "I have seen you tackle worse cases. He seems dead easy. Then let me in the cell, take my clothes and leave me here."

Quest followed the scheme in his mind quickly.

"It is all right," he decided, "but I am not at all sure that they can really hold me on the evidence they have got. If they can't, I shall be doing myself more harm than good in this way."

"It's no use unless you can get hold of Craig quickly," Laura said. "He is getting the scares, as it is."

"I'll do it," Quest decided. "Call the guard, Laura."

SANK IN EIGHTEEN MINUTES

Torpedo Hit Lusitania Amidships on Starboard Side.

London, May 13.—The following statement was issued at the American embassy:

"As to the sinking of the ship (Lusitania) it appears from all statements which have been secured that no warning was given. A torpedo hit amidships on the starboard side and the ship listed because of the longitudinal character of the bulkheads, the port air spaces remaining intact. Later she righted.

"The sinking was in sixty fathoms and the captain believes her nose touched the bottom before her stern disappeared, accounting for the slight suction.

"It seems from reports rather dubious whether a second torpedo struck the ship.

"The sinking took eighteen minutes and occurred at 2:33 p. m."

RUMOR SAYS ITALY WILL ENTER CONFLICT.

Geneva, May 13.—The correspondent at Rome of the Journal de Geneve says he is able to affirm that Italy's intervention in the war has been absolutely decided upon.

"The government," the correspondent adds, "shortly will take steps which will leave no doubt about Italy's intentions and when the cabinet appears before parliament May 20 that body will ratify an accomplished fact."

REPUBLICANS MAY YET NAME HUGHES

Statement of Justice Fails to Silence Backers.

POLITICIANS OPPOSE HIM.

It is Possible For G. O. P. to Nominate Him as a Compromise Candidate, a Popular Man and a Vote Getter. West Virginia Prohibition Law is One That Really Prohibits.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 13.—[Special.]—"What else could he say?" That was a reply to a question about Justice Hughes and his recent statement. The talk about Hughes for president had reached such proportions that something had to come from him, at least indirectly. He had to repeat what he has said before—that all the talk about him was distasteful, that he had left politics, and all that. "What else could he say?"

But that would not prevent his nomination if the Republican convention should be in a deadlock for many ballots. If at the time of the convention it became apparent that the Republicans were going to have a hard fight, that they couldn't expect to elect "any old nominee," then the convention might turn to Hughes, because the Republicans want to win.

Not a Politician's Candidate.

Justice Hughes is not a politician's candidate. No politician wants him. The men who make him president would not be able to secure favors. The men who brought about his nomination, if it should be brought about, would not be able to go to the White House and "cash in" by getting places for themselves or friends in case of his election.

The politicians don't want that kind of a president, and they will not have that kind of a man if Republican prospects look bright when the convention meets. If there are doubts, if Wilson looms boldly on the horizon, the Republicans will turn to Hughes as a vote getter.

Little Chance For Bootleggers.

The West Virginians did not pass their prohibition act in any haphazard way. They made the law effective and left little chance for bootleggers and proprietors of "underground whisky routes" to play a profitable traffic. A traveler through the southern part of the state says it is not unusual to see in the vestibules of trains entering West Virginia many bags and valises with conspicuous tags, reading, "This bag contains six quarts of whisky," and another, "This contains four quarts of gin," and similar labels, according to the contents.

The law makes it a crime to carry more than two quarts of liquor into the state unless the package is plainly labeled. There is no chance to ship quantities of liquor into the state to be distributed by the bootleggers. Traveling back and forth with quantities of liquor to be sold in defiance of the law is too expensive and too dangerous for the profits offered.

Problem For a Texas Colonel.

Colonel Cecil Lyon of Texas was one of the men who gladly went with Roosevelt into the Progressive party. Colonel Lyon was one of the several delegates that were flung "neck and crop" out of the convention in 1912, and he was about the sorest man among all those who were run over by the steam roller of that year.

It will be a great problem for Colonel Lyon to decide what to do if his leader should return to the Republican party. And just what he will do about again mixing in with those members of the "old guard" who threw him down in 1912 is a question.

Fine Hand Writing.

They can't engrave anything better than President Wilson's writing when he sets himself down to do a neat and tasty job. Occasionally the president desires to send a nice polite or friendly note, and he writes it in his own hand. The alignment is perfect, the letters smooth and even; every "t" is crossed and every "i" is dotted. There is neither blot nor smudge. It occupies just the right position on the paper, and if it were not for the character in the hand writing one might think it was engraved. But a majority of his admirers say that they prefer the president's hand writing to be simply his signature—at the bottom of commissions in which their names appear.

Burleson Is Intense.

"Do you suppose he talks that way in cabinet meetings?" asked a man who had been listening to Postmaster General Burleson on a subject in which he was really interested. When Burleson gets warmed up over a subject he goes at it just as he did as a member of the house and his intensity is shown in every word and act. He certainly makes the cabinet meetings interesting if he adopts the same methods at those gatherings.

Congressmen in Washington.

More congressmen have remained in Washington this year than ever before during a recess. It was generally supposed that they were all anxious to get back home among their people, but many of them are willing to postpone that pleasure until later in the summer. Quite a number of congressmen instead of mingling with their constituents have gone on long trips.

WILL WIPE OUT PRESENT SYSTEM

William D. Haywood Explains I. W. W. Aspirations.

CLASS CONTEST INEVITABLE

Labor Spokesman Declares There Can Be No Identity of Interest Between the Workers and Such Men as Rockefeller and Morgan.

Washington, May 13.—A revolution that would wipe out America's present industrial and political system and establish an ideal era of freedom was described to the federal commission on industrial relations as the ultimate object of the Industrial Workers of the World by William D. Haywood, its secretary and treasurer.

A world in which labor, organized into a vast compact union, should control all of the means of production and in which there should be no such thing as capital, was held up by Haywood as his land of promise.

He declared that only implacable war between labor and capital, ending with a great general strike and confiscation of the means of production could bring the workers to that ideal existence.

"This is a class struggle that must go on," he told the commission. "There can be no identity of interest between the workers, who have only their labor power, and such men as Rockefeller and Morgan and their stockholders who contribute nothing to production."

Will Be No Government.

"I have had a dream of a new society some time, in which there will be no struggle between capital and labor, in which every man will have free access to the land and the means of production and livelihood. There will be no government, no states, as we know them now."

"Congress will be made up not of lawyers and preachers, but of experts from all branches of industry, come together for the good of all the people."

Commissioner Weinstock questioned Haywood as to what methods would be employed to bring about this change.

"I believe in any kind of tactics," the witness said, "I don't care if it means revolution. That's all." In the new era, Haywood said, there would be no great cities.

"What is to become of New York, Chicago and the other great cities?" Commissioner Weinstock asked.

"I would tear them down, or leave them as monuments to the foolishness of this age."

CHAPTER XIII.

Craig's surprise was real enough as he opened the back door of the professor's house on the following morning and found Lenora standing on the threshold.

Lenora smiled pleasantly. "I came to this door," she said, "because I wanted a little talk with you." Craig's attitude was perfect. He was mystified but he remained respectful. "Will you come inside?" he invited. She shook her head.

"I am afraid," she confided, "of what I am going to say being overheard. Come with me down to the garage for a moment."

He opened the doors of the garage, leaving the keys in the lock, and they both passed inside.

"You can say what you please here without the slightest fear of being overheard, miss," Craig remarked.

Lenora nodded, and breathed a prayer to herself. She was nearer the door than Craig by about half a dozen paces. Her hand groped in the little bag she was carrying and gripped something hard. She clenched her teeth for a moment. Then the automatic pistol flashed out through the gloom.

"Craig," she threatened, "if you move I shall shoot you."

It seemed as though the man were a coward. He began to tremble, his lips twitched, his eyes grew larger and rounder.

"What is it?" he faltered. "What do you want?"

"Just this," Lenora said firmly. "I suspect you to be guilty of the crime for which Sanford Quest is in prison. I am going to have you questioned. If you are innocent you have nothing to fear. If you are guilty there will be someone here before long who will extract the truth from you."

The man's face was an epitome of terror. Even his knees shook. Lenora felt herself grow calmer with every moment.

"I am going outside to send a message," she told him. "I shall return presently."

"Don't go," he begged suddenly. "Don't leave me! I am innocent. I have done nothing wrong. If you keep me here, you will do more harm than you can dream of."

"Have you said anything to Mr. Ashleigh, miss?" the man asked piteously.

"Not a word."

A expression of relief shone for a moment upon his face. Lenora pointed to a stool.

"Sit down there and wait quietly," she ordered.

He obeyed without a word. She left the place, locked the door securely, and made her way round to the other side of the garage—the side hidden from the house. Here, at the far corner, she drew a little pocket wireless from her bag and set it on the window sill. Very slowly she sent her message:

"I have Craig here. In the professor's garage, locked up. If our plan has succeeded, come at once. I am waiting for you."

There was no reply. She sent the message again and again. Suddenly, during a pause, there was a little flash upon the plate. A message was coming to her. She transcribed it with beating heart:

O. K. Coming.

The guard swung open the wicket in front of Quest's cell.

"Young woman to see you, Quest," he announced. "Ten minutes, and no loud talking, please."

Quest moved to the bars. It was Laura who stood there. She wasted very little time in preliminaries. Having satisfied herself that the guard was out of hearing, she leaned as close as she could to Quest.

"Look here," she said, "Lenora's crazy with the idea that Craig has done these jobs—Craig, the professor's servant, you know. We used the photoelectric yesterday afternoon and saw him burn something in the professor's study. Lenora went up straight away and got hold of the ashes."

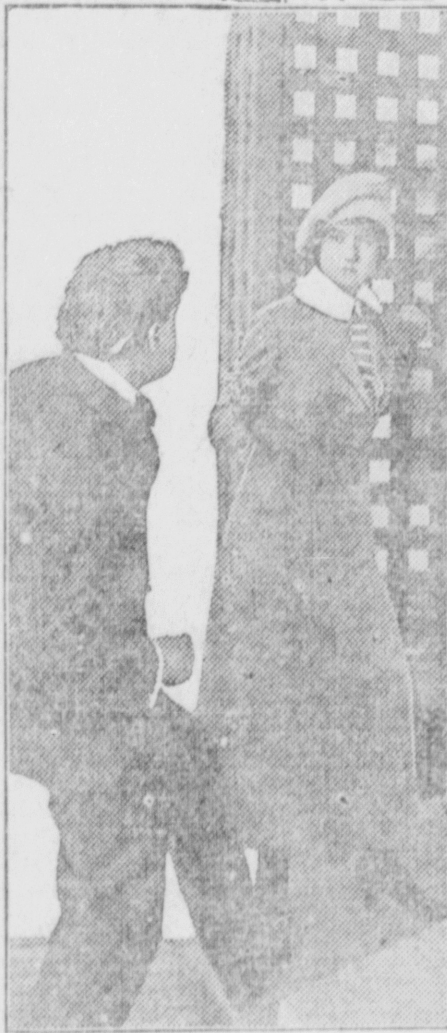

"Smart girl," Quest murmured, nodding approvingly. "Well?"

"There are distinct fragments," Laura continued, "of embroidered stuff such as the Salvation Army girl might have been wearing. We put them on one side, but they ain't enough evidence. Lenora's idea is that you should get hold of Craig and hypnotize him into a confession."

"That's all right," Quest replied, "but how am I to get hold of him?"

Laura glanced once more carelessly around to where the guard stood.

"Lenora's gone up to the professor's again this afternoon. She is going to try and get hold of Craig and lock him in the garage. If she succeeds, she will send a message by wireless at three o'clock. It is half-past two now."

"Well?" Quest exclaimed. "Well?"

"You can work this guard, if you want to," Lenora went on. "I have seen you tackle worse cases. He seems dead easy. Then let me in the cell, take my clothes and leave me here."

Quest followed the scheme in his mind quickly.

"It is all right," he decided, "but I am not at all sure that they can really hold me on the evidence they have got. If they can't, I shall be doing myself more harm than good in this way."

"It's no use unless you can get hold of Craig quickly," Laura said. "He is getting the scales, as it is."

"I'll do it," Quest decided. "Call the guard now."

SANK IN EIGHTEEN MINUTES

Torpedo Hit Lusitania Amidships on Starboard Side.

London, May 12.—The following statement was issued at the American embassy:

"As to the sinking of the ship (Lusitania) it appears from all statements which have been secured that no warning was given. A torpedo hit amidships on the starboard side and the ship listed because of the longitudinal character of the bulkheads, the port air spaces remaining intact. Later she righted.

"The sinking was in sixty fathoms and the captain believes her nose touched the bottom before her stern disappeared, accounting for the slight suction.

"It seems from reports rather dubious whether a second torpedo struck the ship.

"The sinking took eighteen minutes and occurred at 2:33 p. m."

RUMOR SAYS ITALY WILL ENTER CONFLICT.

Geneva, May 13.—The correspondent at Rome of the Journal de Geneve says he is able to affirm that Italy's intervention in the war has been absolutely decided upon.

"The government," the correspondent adds, "shortly will take steps which will leave no doubt about Italy's intentions and when the cabinet appears before parliament May 20 that body will ratify an accomplished fact."

REPUBLICANS MAY YET NAME HUGHES

Statement of Justice Fails to Silence Backers.

POLITICIANS OPPOSE HIM.

It is Possible For G. O. P. to Nominate Him as a Compromise Candidate, a Popular Man and a Vote Getter. West Virginia Prohibition Law is One That Really Prohibits.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 12.—[Special.]—"What else could he say?" That was a reply to a question about Justice Hughes and his recent statement. The talk about Hughes for president had reached such proportions that something had to come from him, at least indirectly. He had to repeat what he has said before—that all the talk about him was distasteful, that he had left politics, and all that. "What else could he say?"

But that would not prevent his nomination if the Republican convention should be in a deadlock for many ballots. If at the time of the convention it became apparent that the Republicans were going to have a hard fight, that they couldn't expect to elect "any old nominee," then the convention might turn to Hughes, because the Republicans want to win.

Not a Politician's Candidate.

Justice Hughes is not a politician's candidate. No politician wants him. The men who make him president would not be able to secure favors. The men who brought about his nomination, if it should be brought about, would not be able to go to the White House and "cash in" by getting places for themselves or friends in case of his election.

The politicians don't want that kind of a president, and they will not have that kind of a man if Republican prospects look bright when the convention meets. If there are doubts, if Wilson looms boldly on the horizon, the Republicans will turn to Hughes as a vote getter.

Little Chance For Bootleggers.

The West Virginians did not pass their prohibition act in any haphazard way. They made the law effective and left little chance for bootleggers and proprietors of "underground whisky routes" to play a profitable traffic. A traveler through the southern part of the state says it is not unusual to see in the vestibules of trains entering West Virginia many bags and valises with conspicuous tags, reading, "This bag contains six quarts of whisky," and another, "This contains four quarts of gin," and similar labels, according to the contents.

The law makes it a crime to carry more than two quarts of liquor into the state unless the package is plainly labeled. There is no chance to ship quantities of liquor into the state to be distributed by the bootleggers. Traveling back and forth with quantities of liquor to be sold in defiance of the law is too expensive and too dangerous for the profits offered.

Problem For a Texas Colonel.

Colonel Cecil Lyon of Texas was one of the men who gladly went with Roosevelt into the Progressive party. Colonel Lyon was one of the several delegates that were flung "neck and crop" out of the convention in 1912, and he was about the sorest man among all those who were run over by the steam roller of that year.

It will be a great problem for Colonel Lyon to decide what to do if his leader should return to the Republican party. And just what he will do about again mixing in with those members of the "old guard" who threw him down in 1912 is a question.

Fine Hand Writing.

They can't engrave anything better than President Wilson's writing when he sets himself down to do a neat and tasty job. Occasionally the president desires to send a nice polite or friendly note, and he writes it in his own hand. The alignment is perfect, the letters smooth and even; every "t" is crossed and every "i" is dotted. There is neither blot nor smudge. It occupies just the right position on the paper, and if it were not for the character in the hand writing one might think it was engraved. But a majority of his admirers say that they prefer the president's hand writing to be simply his signature—at the bottom of commissions in which their names appear.

Burleson is Intense.

"Do you suppose he talks that way in cabinet meetings?" asked a man who had been listening to Postmaster General Burleson on a subject in which he was really interested. When Burleson gets warmed up over a subject he goes at it just as he did as a member of the house and his intensity is shown in every word and act. He certainly makes the cabinet meetings interesting if he adopts the same methods at those gatherings.

Congressmen in Washington.

More congressmen have remained in Washington this year than ever before during a recess. It was generally supposed that they were all anxious to get back home among their people, but many of them are willing to postpone that pleasure until later in the summer. Quite a number of congressmen instead of lounging with their constituents have gone on long trips.

WILL WIPE OUT PRESENT SYSTEM

William D. Haywood Explains I. W. W. Aspirations.

CLASS CONTEST INEVITABLE

Labor Spokesman Declares There Can Be No Identity of Interest Between the Workers and Such Men as Rockefeller and Morgan.

Washington, May 13.—A revolution that would wipe out America's present industrial and political system and establish an ideal era of freedom was described to the federal commission on industrial relations as the ultimate object of the Industrial Workers of the World by William D. Haywood, its secretary and treasurer.

A world in which labor, organized into a vast compact union, should control all of the means of production and in which there should be no such thing as capital, was held up by Haywood as his land of promise.

He declared that only implacable war between labor and capital, ending with a great general strike and confiscation of the means of production could bring the workers to that ideal existence.

"This is a class struggle that must go on," he told the commission. "There can be no identity of interest between the workers, who have only their labor power, and such men as Rockefeller and Morgan and their stockholders who contribute nothing to production."

Will Be No Government.

"I have had a dream of a new society some time, in which there will be no struggle between capital and labor, in which every man will have free access to the land and the means of production and livelihood. There will be no government, no states, as we know them now."

"Congress will be made up not of lawyers and preachers, but of experts from all branches of industry, come together for the good of all the people."

Commissioner Weinstein questioned Haywood as to what methods would be employed to bring about this change.

"I believe in any kind of tactics," the witness said, "I don't care if it means revolution. That's all." In the new era, Haywood said, there would be no great cities.

"What is to become of New York, Chicago and the other great cities?" Commissioner Weinstein asked.

DROP SHELLS ON DUNKIRK

German Artillery Also Wings British Flying Machines.

Berlin, May 13.—The German army headquarters gave a report on the progress of hostilities which reads: "Aviators of the enemy dropped bombs on Bruges without doing any damage from a military point of view. "East of Ypres we took an important hill. Dunkirk was bombarded by our artillery. East of Dixmude we shot down a British flying machine. "Trenches taken by the French during the past few days between Corency and Neuville, north of Arras, are still in their possession. Otherwise all the attempts of the enemy to break through our lines were in vain. His attacks were confined chiefly against our positions to the east and southeast of Vermelles, in the Lorette hills and at the villages of Abblain and Carency, as well as against our positions to the east and southeast of Arras."
